

Fractal Burns, Graphic Square Designs

Fractal burning, also called Lichtenberg etching, is a Process that creates images on wood using high-voltage electricity and a conductive solution.

The textures are from four different woods (Tan poplar, Dark Brazil, Red Wood and Zebra). These "Exotic woods" are sanded smooth and imaged for the textures. I use a Neon Sign Transformer (10KV 30mA) and a solution of water, salt and baking soda. The resulting burns are cleaned and imaged. The Dark was filled with a white crayon using a torch then scraped smooth.
