

Real Life versus Second Life Goods!

I have products in both Second Life (SL) and Real Life (RL). You can't buy RL goods in SL or vice versa, for the most part. I have Web Browser Touch Pads (WBTP) in SL that show goods from the SL Marketplace (MP), similar RL products at on-line on-demand product sites. You can have the WBTP open the site in your secured system browser to pursue purchases.

I do not do any commerce on my personal sites or domains (thunderchild.net and kock.rocks). For SL, the SL MP or Casper at in-World sites. For RL goods, my designs and products are available at on-line sites:

- RedBubble.com A good wide variety of goods, clothes to decorum.
- TeePublic.com Mostly Tee shirts and a few other items. Div of RedBubble
- Society6.com A good wide variety of goods, clothes to decorum.
- SpoonFlower.com A textile and fabric shop by samples and yards

My main products are my artwork, textures of my artwork or patterns and layouts from my artwork. In SL, they are sold as part of an object of clothing or other things, full permission textures for builders are sold at AJ's Texture Gallery. In the RL or SL, I can work with just about anyone for custom designs and goods. I am always happy to work with anyone to resolve situations or customize something.

Feel free to contact me with question, comments or requests. My in-world door is always open and has a notecard drop box.

AJ

HTTP://THUNDERCHILD.NET

rev. 02/14/22